

Galab Uroukov Jacome

A-levels Studied: Maths,
Further Maths, Physics, EPQ

University Attending:

London School of Economics (LSE)

Degree Studying:

Financial Mathematics and Statistics

"... What is there positive to say about LSE? Well, I can start off with its impressive stats - it is ranked best University in London and 25th globally.

It is a universally renowned specialised University with very high graduate prospects. It is recognised for its research and currently 25% of Economics Nobel Prize winners are LSE alumni.

Finally, Angelina Jolie is a guest professor at LSE!

However, on the downside, LSE is fundamentally a graduate university. What I mean is that it is somewhat lacking when it comes to the 'university experience.' LSE is ranked bottom in the UK when it comes to student satisfaction.

In my experience with the teachers you either have terrible teachers or good ones, with none in between.

Overall, I would say that LSE is a place for those more interested in a successful career than necessarily having a great university experience... "