“ ... the university is well organised, offering students a constant amount of social events. We receive weekly emails about events that we can attend. Most are paid by uni with travel also organised by uni. There are tons and tons of clubs you can join; I’m part of the Basketball and Business clubs. Kent has two campuses in Medway and Canterbury and we have the opportunity to travel for free between both and use facilities there (There are more clubs in Canterbury but you don't really want to get an Uber at 3am). The campus is located in the Historic Dockyard Chatham, which is a really pretty place if you want to take your significant other for a nice walk :) Overall, the uni offers a good balance between gigantic workload (at least for courses at Medway - from what my friends have told me) and daily opportunity for social events which are super fun and definitely make you forget about that assignment for next week. Regardless of that, University of Kent cares that students get the fun they need but are challenged academically ...”
